Enter Pleasley Pit Country Park through the kissing gate and ascend the grassy path alongside the trees. Turn left at the top, from where you should stop for a moment to take in the great view across the area.
2. Turn right along the improved path through the kissing gate and continue alongside the fence on your right, passing the lake. Go straight on at the junction through another kissing gate and follow the path left. Pass between the redundant gateposts and bear right alongside the trees to a kissing gate. Branch left at the seat between hedges and descend the enclosed path. Leave the Country Park, cross over the track and go straight on along the concessionary bridleway waymarked Hardwick Hall. Continue along Dale Lane and turn left at the end into the hamlet of Rowthorne.

3. Turn right through the gate just past Haven Hill on the path signed to Ault Hucknall. The line, which may not be visible, is marked by kissing gates and a solitary tree, beyond which head for the field corner and the next kissing gate. Follow the hedge on your right to the road and turn left.
4. Turn right at the next junction and enter the Hardwick estate, turning left after 200m through the kissing gate, to join the Oak Walk. Head towards the trees, pass to the right of the waymark post and seat and enter the wood.
5. Leave the wood through a kissing gate, turn right and cross the stream to another kissing gate. Continue up the steps and along the edge of the field. Pass through the gate, cross the track and bear slightly left through two avenues of trees, in between which you have a fine view of the Hardwick Hall. Continue to the next kissing gate and enter more woodland. The path is again easy to follow. Turn left at the junction and make the steady climb to the exit. Go left along the track, which then becomes a tarmac lane.
